Nicola Meecham - BIOGRAPHY

With her playing described as “sensational”, British pianist Nicola Meecham has been gaining international acclaim from critics and listeners alike since the release of her recent CD on the SOMM label.

Nicola started playing the piano at the age of four and gave her concerto debut at the age of thirteen. She went on to study at the Royal Academy of Music where she won numerous competitive prizes, including the Academy’s highest distinction, the Macfarren Gold Medal. Study awards included scholarships from the Countess of Munster Musical Trust and from the Czech Government to study in Prague and she was a prizewinner of the Goddard Concert Trust. Her teachers have included Hilary Coates, Hamish Milne and Andrzej Esterhazy.

Since her debut for the Park Lane Group 20th Century Music Series in London, Nicola has performed in all the major halls, including Wigmore Hall, St John’s Smith Square, the Queen Elizabeth Hall and Purcell Room, and at prestigious international festivals including Exeter and King’s Lynn. Abroad, she has performed in Holland, Italy, Belgium and the Czech Republic.

Nicola has given premières of works by a number of international composers for which she has received critical acclaim. These include Henryk Górecki’s Four Preludes Op 1, HK Gruber’s Luftschlösser and David Horne’s Nocturnes and Nightmares.

Her recording output includes a highly acclaimed disc for the SOMM label featuring solo piano music by Janáček, Kodály and Enescu. She has also recorded music by Kurt Schwertsik and the maverick American composer „Moondog“ (aka Louis Hardin) for the Kopf and Largo labels. In addition, Nicola has broadcast recitals for BBC Radio 3 and for Dutch Radio and has appeared on BBC 2.

Nicola's concerto and recital repertoire is wide-ranging and includes many rarely performed works. She has a great affection for folk- inspired music, particularly from Central and Eastern Europe, and her recitals have also featured music by Latin and South American composers.

Nicola Meecham – CRITICAL ACCLAIM

“No praise could be high enough for such an adventurous and challenging programme, particularly when offered in such vivid and affectionate performances... Enescu's 3rd Sonata is a wholly personal creation, played by Nicola Meecham with brilliant dexterity and musical devotion.”

–Bryce Morrison/The Gramophone

---

“Excellent... Meecham is completely inside the music, alert to the expressive undertones and implications of Janacek's fragmentary, allusive style of writing...altogether a very distinguished recital.”

-Calum MacDonald/International Record Review

---

“...the complex multi-layering of Enescu's 'Third' Sonata is enough to make most mortals despair, but to do so with the sleight-of-hand reflexes and exuberant delight of Nicola Meecham borders on the sensational...[she] captures perfectly the child-like wonder that lies at the heart of On an Overgrown Path. Her close identification with Eastern European, folksong-inflected music is further demonstrated by her masterly traversal of Kodaly's op.II Pieces.”

-Julian Haylock/International Piano

“Schubert's G major sonata, D894...was a really compelling experience. The background calm of the first movement was superbly maintained, allowing the eruptive climaxes to stand out all the more sharply. The third movement had a truculence that was not out of place, while the distant vision of the trio section was genuinely poignant. A triumphant performance of Prokofiev's 2nd Sonata ended the evening, with a fine control of the driving rhythms in the Scherzo, a beautifully shaded approach to the third movement's big climax, and unflagging energy in the finale.”

-Music and Vision

“To control not only the notes of Schumann’s long and congested F sharp minor sonata, Op 11, but to perform them in a convincing way, takes a very special sort of pianist. Nicola Meecham, who chose it as centerpiece of her lunchtime recital at Edinburgh University yesterday, certainly proved equal to the task. Even, in the finale, by which point many performers are suffering loss of will-power, this deceptively demure young player made each resounding statement of the main theme gather an unstoppable force, strong enough to sweep aside all the intervening passagework and drive the music to its conclusion... One of her virtues was that she could focus on a melodic line without letting it become entangled in the convoluted figuration and obsessive rhythms which dominate the work. Thick textures evidently held no fears for her. The transcriptions of six Gershwin songs, with which she completed her programme, sounded quite Lisztian; but they, too, were impressively put over.”

-The Scotsman

---

“Nicola Meecham gave a short recital in which Leighton's Six Studies (Study Variations) op 56, impressed by their inventiveness and economy. She is a confident and accomplished player.”

-The Times

“Wednesday's concert got off to a fine start with Leighton's Six Studies for piano, strongly realized by Nicola Meecham. It is very much to her credit that her playing constantly drew attention to the music itself rather than to the often hair-raising technical challenges posed by the works in her recital. In Roberto Gerhard's Dances from Don Quixote (played from memory) she seemed completely at ease. Individual voices were clearly differentiated - so much so that I soon forgot that I was listening to a transcription of a complex orchestral score.”

-The Musical Times

"A strong and commanding musician - I look forward to hearing her soon in some mainstream repertoire.”

-The Financial Times

"Accomplished and intelligent . . . she gave a lively account of the Dances from Don Quixote.”

-The Daily Telegraph

---

"Nicola Meecham, from England. further perfected her interpretation and affinity for the music of Janáček, whose piano cycle In the mist she played with extraordinary understanding."

-Prague Evening News

---

"Lambert's Piano Sonata made a striking impression in a superbly rhythmic and zestful performance by Nicola Meecham."

-The Guardian

---

"Constant Lambert was represented by his brilliant Piano Sonata of 1927, which Nicola Meecham gave with sweeping confidence."

-The Times

---

"...beautifully played by Nicola Meecham. This type of performance is not easy to pull off: the pianist has to be spot-on with response to the Speaker's Narrative, illustrating each episode with unerring capture of mood. She did it all to perfection. I want to hear her in other music - an artist with a future, no doubt at all."
