BIOGRAPHY

Before moving to New York from London, Chloe studied with Aaron Shorr at The Royal Academy of Music, Zenon Fishbein at The Manhattan School of Music, and Herbert Stessin at The Juilliard School. Chloe began training in violin, cello, piano, and voice at the age of four, but only began serious piano lessons at sixteen. Even so, she accelerated rapidly, winning numerous prizes and competitions, and performing as a soloist throughout the United States and abroad. After moving back to the United States, Chloe began to focus on Hip-Hop and R&B. While still performing classical concerts, she also continued working with various pop artists as their session pianist and co-producer. She also began an internship in the executive office for Russell Simmons, and for the Vice-President of IMG New York. Still, Chloe's goal is breakout as a soloist, reaching audiences all over the world. Her combination of Classical with Hip-Hop have been a new and exciting journey. She is currently working on a her first solo album, which will surely be among music's most innovative undertakings!
